The issue under study is the urgency of monitoring the Police in law enforcement, and how the implementation of the Police's supervisory system to realize the professional Police in law enforcement, and how the ideal model of supervision of the Police to realize the professional Police in law enforcement.

The problem that poses a serious challenge for the Police is the cultural problem of the Polri members, this is related to the many abuses and misbehavior committed by members of the Police when carrying out their duties and authorities in the community, so in order to reduce these violations, supervision is required as part of the implementation of management within the Police institution to realize the professional Police. Internal reform has been carried out by the Police since 1999 by conducting 3 (three) internal reform agenda namely structural reform, instrumental reform, and cultural reform.

This research uses normative approach with descriptive specification that is researcher describes about urgency of supervision implementation, ideal supervision system to Polri to realize professional Police in law enforcement.

The research findings are known that: 1. In carrying out duties, the police are always in contact with the community; 2. In law enforcement (criminal) Police are at the forefront of operating the operation of the criminal justice system; 3. Police with the number of police officers more than 400 thousand is potentially a lot of irregularities committed by elements of the Police. Conclusion: The police in carrying out their duties are ambiguities which on one hand maintain the security and order of the people and uphold the law, but on the other hand the Police are in charge of protecting, protecting and serving the community; There are still many violations / irregularities committed by members of the Police. Police oversight system is to build a synergic oversight mechanism between the internal police and external supervisors. The ideal supervision system of the Police in law enforcement is by strengthening the internal police inspector especially the investigator inspector both from the instrumental aspect of the authority, the structural that is under the direct position of the Chief of Police, and the culture that is with the election of supervisors of quality and integrity.
