In the life of society in general, the land is a means and a very important need for human beings, not only become agrarian problems that have been synonymous with agriculture, but has grown in terms of benefits and usefulness. This often leads to potential disputes that often impact on the implementation of development. It means land is a means by which human beings can produce offspring, the land is where humans live and can play their social functions as well as personal functions. For the state of Indonesia, as an agrarian country has a very important function for the prosperity and welfare of its people. One of the land conflicts that is currently the implementation of land without the rightful permits, or more popularly called land grabs.

The problem is, 1. What is the legal basis for enforcement of land criminal acts as a law for the owner of land rights. And 2. How is law enforcement in the process of criminal investigation in the field of land using a false run? This research methodology is a normative and empirical legal research by examining the legal norms applicable to a particular situation, so that this research can be categorized as empirical law research.

The results of his research; 1.The investigation is an investigator's action in the case and based on the way prepared based on the legal basis of KUHAP, Law Number 2 Year 2002 regarding the State Police of the Republic of Indonesia, Law Number 5 Year 1960 About the Law on Law and some related legislation with criminal offenses in the field of land 2. The process of investigation is a series of actions to solve the evidence and calling the parties to be questioned is often not in accordance with the time set by the investigator. This process in clarifying the existence of a criminal offense in the field of slander that use the deed as the ingredients.
